Discussion

The 30-minute documentary profiles the growth, struggle, and inspiring spirit of the Bahá’í Institute for Higher Education (BIHE).
Bahá’ís in Iran have been subjected to systematic persecution, including arrests, torture, and execution simply for refusing to recant their beliefs. They are prohibited from going to college and blocked from many professions.

“One of the most powerful human documentaries I have ever seen, Education Under Fire is sure to galvanize viewers who will be exposed to an outrage that until now has received little attention – the systematic denial of an entire religious community of the right to pursue higher education in their own country.”
